

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An auxiliary folding device for a treadmill is mounted between a main frame and the platform of the treadmill. The platform is pivotally connected to the main frame. The auxiliary folding device
5 includes an air cylinder having opposite ends respectively pivotally connected to the main frame and the platform. The air cylinder extends when the user folds the platform toward the main frame for user to fold the treadmill in a labor-saving way.